

Fliers Injured In Forced Landing on Coast of Brazil

Trans-Atlantic Plane Turns Over on Landing Near Maracuja and Is Wrecked—Fail of Their Purpose But Achieve Sixth Successful Crossing of South Atlantic.

Rio Janeiro, Brazil, Dec. 17 (AP).—Major Tadeo Larre-Borges, Uruguayan flier, and his French companion, Lieutenant Leon Challe, made a forced landing last night on the northeastern coast of Brazil, after a 2,600-mile flight from Seville, Spain, across the South Atlantic.

Although the Uruguayan Legation issued a statement this afternoon reporting both fliers to have been seriously injured in the landing, later advices indicated their hurts were less than had been feared and that Major Larre-Borges had been able to start for the town of Santo Antonio.

To make certain, however, that the fliers were given every attention, physicians and others left Natal for the scene of the landing this morning to render any aid that might be needed.

The transatlantic plane turned over on landing in a wild spot near the village of Maracuja and was wrecked.

Sixth Successful Crossing.

Although the fliers failed of their purpose to make a non-stop 6,000-mile hop to the capitol of Uruguay, they achieved the sixth successful crossing of the South Atlantic and covered approximately 3,600 miles.

That they made the 2,600-mile ocean hop by just a narrow margin was indicated by the fact that they were forced to land near Natal, which is on the extreme tip of the South American continent nearest Africa.

It was along this part of the Brazilian coast that Captain Francisco Iglesias and his companion, Captain Ignacio Jimenez, landed in October of this year on a similar flight from Seville to South America.

Major Larre-Borges, who is a Uruguayan, attempted to fly from Europe to South America in 1927, but made a forced landing on the North African coast and for several weeks disappeared from view.

Eventually he turned up under escort of a Moorish caravan which held him for ransom.

Challe, noted French flier, is a distinguished French flier who has made many long distance flights, in 1926 establishing a world's non-stop record up to that time for a flight to Persia from France.

The two airmen took off from Seville, Spain, at 12:40 p. m. Sunday, Spanish time, or 7:40 eastern standard time.

Throughout the flight they made excellent time, averaging well up to 100 miles an hour, but apparently they ran into difficulties off the Brazilian coast. They had shown anxiety regarding weather conditions on the coast, having sent several wireless messages asking information.

This morning the Brazilian authorities made every effort to take relief to the fliers and the head of the postal aviation service ordered a plane to proceed immediately to Maracuja.

The village at which the fliers landed is quite close to Touros, which is the point at which Captain Arturo Ferrarin and his companion, Major Carlo Desprete, landed in July, 1928, when they established a world's flight distance record, recently broken by Captain Deudonne Coste, the French aviator, on a flight from France to China.

First reports of the landing of the plane reached the outside world by way of a small private telegraph line to Natal.

Airmen Lost Their Way.

From the meagre advices which trickled over the line it appeared that the airmen lost their way after striking the coast and landed at a point about sixty miles off the coast near the border line of the states of Rio Grande do Norte and Parahyba.

The landing was some time between 9:00 p. m. and midnight (between 7:00 p. m. and 10:00 p. m. eastern standard time). This would mean that the fliers were in the air between 36 and 39 hours.

The plane was reported to have turned over in making the landing, injuring both men.

The aviators were found by a group of horsemen from the interior who were riding toward the coast. The spot at which the machine came down was distant from habitation and it was several hours before the horsemen could reach a town where it was possible to get in touch with Natal and to give an account of what had happened.

Friday, The 16th Her Lucky Day.

Paris, Dec. 17 (AP).—Pola Negri, American movie star, has decided Friday the 13th is her lucky day.

"We were separated eight months but never separated in our hearts," she said today regarding her reconciliation with her husband, Prince Serge Medvedoff of Russia.

"We realized we couldn't get along without one another when we met in a divorcee's room at the Hotel de Ville last night. I am not superstitious but it was a lucky day for both of us."

Mexico Strikes Back at Laredo

For Attitude Taken By John Vails, District Attorney, Toward General Calles—Close Mexican Consulate.

Mexico City, Dec. 17 (AP).—The Mexican government today struck back at Laredo, Texas border city, for the attitude taken by John Vails, district attorney there, toward General Plutarco Elias Calles, former Mexican president.

The foreign office announced that effective January, the Mexican consulate at Laredo would be closed. The Department of Interior announced that permission granted to the Laredo Chamber of Commerce to issue tourist cards for entry into Mexico would be rescinded.

As Laredo is the principal port of entry of American products and of American tourists into Mexico, it was expected here the action might serve to divert traffic hitherto passing through Laredo to other ports of entry.

Closing of the consulate meant that merchandise entering Mexico through Laredo must be approved by the consulate at some other point, possibly Corpus Christi, San Antonio, or Houston. Similarly tourists would have to seek entry cards at some other city.

The foreign office announcement said, "The department of foreign relations has sent instructions for closing of the Mexican consulate at Laredo effective Tuesday, December 17, as a protest against the acts of District Attorney Vails."

Vails, for many years prosecutor in Laredo, named both General Calles and the late General Obregon in murder warrants charging complicity in the death in 1922 of two Mexican officers on the Texas side of the Rio Grande.

He threatened that if General Calles ever passed through Laredo he would arrest him and try him on the charge. It was understood here General Calles crossed into Mexico through Laredo last night only, because he held a United States Department certificate of diplomatic immunity. General Calles is returning from a European trip for his health.

The Mexican government's action was accepted here as indicating in no way ill feeling toward the American government but rather as a step entirely against Vails, seeking to embarrass him by hindering imports and tourist trade through Laredo.

The Laredo district attorney frequently is referred to in the local press as the "eternal enemy of Mexico."

Tax Reduction Bill Signed By President

One of Several Recommendations in Annual Message Which, in the First Two Weeks of the Session, Has Advanced With Unusual Speed.

Washington, Dec. 17 (AP).—The hum of activity in the House and Senate bespeaks today the response of Congress to the legislative recommendations of Herbert Hoover.

Just two weeks ago the thirty-first president set forth in a message his views on the "State of the Union," as required by constitutional mandate, and since then the congress elected to office with him has moved with a speed seldom equaled in recent history.

Tax reduction has been completed. The stroke of the chief executive's pen late last evening placed upon the statute books an order for a one per cent reduction in the tax rate on corporation and normal individual incomes.

Approval of the $4,025,000,000 French war debt settlement has been given by both Houses. Its final sanction as a contract of the American government now awaits the President's signature, which is regarded as only a formality.

In the House the Elliott bill, to expand by upwards of $200,000,000 the public buildings program, initiated in the Coolidge administration, has been enacted. It now awaits Senate approval.

In the Senate, where a Democratic-Republican Independent coalition has caused much trouble for administration Republicans over the tariff, the President's proposal for creation of a commission for study of the advisability of the transfer of the prohibition activities of the Treasury to the Department of Justice has been authorized. The House is expected to endorse it.

Aside from these legislative acts, a number of members have offered bills or resolutions to place in legislative form other recommendations of the Chief Executive.

Only in one instance has the White House view failed to receive wholehearted sympathy in Congress. This has been in connection with the suggestion for a commission to study the situation in Haiti. In line with Mr. Hoover's special message, Chairman Porter of the House Foreign Affairs Committee introduced a measure to create such a commission and the committee approved the proposal.

The House Rules Committee, which gives the right of way to legislation in that chamber, refused, however, to set a time for consideration of the proposition in the House chamber. The committee held the proposal to be too indefinite.

Both House and Senate have approved an indefinite extension of the life of the Radio Commission. Except for this action the body would have ceased to exist, except in an appellate capacity, after the first of the year.

Meanwhile, the Senate has found time to approve many nominations: the House has enacted the Interior Department Appropriation Bill, and today was confronted with the second of the big supply measures—that for the Agriculture Department.

CONTRIBUTE $300,000 TO THE "RANDOM RACKET"

Chicago, Dec. 17 (AP).—The Herald and Examiner said today two Chicago gamblers had contributed $300,000 to the "random racket" during the past few days.

"I've been out of town for a few days," was the explanation offered by Abe Goldman, well known about the loop for thirty years. The Herald and Examiner, however, said it had learned Goldman was kidnapped Friday night and held in a north side flat for $20,000 ransom.

A brother secured the money and arranged the release, the newspaper said.

Milton Held, dubbed the "unlucky gambler," was kidnapped Thursday according to the newspaper, and paid $10,000 for his release. It was Held's second kidnapping experience within a year. Other misfortunes that prompt his title of the "unlucky gambler" have been several robberies and a bank failure.

In the belief of police, more than one "random racket" gang is at work.

TWO CASES IN COURT BEFORE JUDGE SHUFELDT

Sidney S. Coles of 329 Lucas avenue, was arrested Monday evening on a charge of carrying a revolver in his possession. This morning before Judge Shufeldt in police court the hearing was adjourned until later.

M. W. Fluckiger of Kerbonkson, arrested on a charge of petit larceny preferred against him by Harry B. Merritt, had his hearing adjourned until Friday. Fluckiger had given Merritt a check for $53 for merchandise and the check had been returned for lack of sufficient funds.

New Hiking Trail in Catskills

Albany, Dec. 17 (AP).—A new hiking trail, approximately seven miles long and leading across the summits of Flatkill, Indian Head, Sugarloaf and Twin Mountains in the Catskills, is announced by the State Conservation Department.

The new trail will connect the hamlet of Platt Clove with the Mt. Hollow trail from Lake Hill to Elba Park.

Chief Murphy Sounds Warning

Fire Chief Says Every Year Christmas Fires Turn Holiday Celebration Into Times of Distress and Mourning for Some Families.

Fire Chief Joseph L. Murphy today issued a warning and some suggestions for averting the danger of a fire in the house during the Christmas holiday season. He said that every year Christmas fires turn the holiday celebration into a time of distress and mourning for some people.

Avoidable fire dangers and carelessness are principally to blame. The fire chief is asking every member of the community to cooperate to the utmost in safeguarding life and property during this holiday season when unusual fire hazards abound.

The advent of the inflammable nitrate motion picture film for use in toy projection machines for children presents a most serious hazard.

Leading film manufacturers have been endeavoring to combat the public sale and distribution of this dangerous film, the use of which should be restricted to standard fire-resistant projection booths.

Chief Murphy lists some of the precautions that the national board of fire underwriters has found most necessary at this time:

Inflammable decorations should not be draped from, or attached to, electric or gas fixtures.

The Christmas tree should be securely anchored to a heavy, solid base and set away from heating or lighting fixtures.

Avoid all inflammable tree decorations and do not use lighted candles.

If electric lights are used on the tree be sure all connections are properly insulated and that the "pull wire" leading into the wall socket is knotted inside the plug. This will prevent the wires from being skinned and remaining exposed when the power is repeatedly disconnected.

Do not allow children to meddle with the tree lights or with connections on electric toys.

Keep matches and volatile fluids out of the children's reach and do not give them toys requiring alcohol, naphtha or gasoline to operate.

Keep a fire extinguisher or pail of water ready for instant use.

Do not allow all the electric lights in the house to be turned on for long at a time.

Disconnect the power on all lighted decorations, including the tree, when leaving the house or retiring for the night. Extinguish the hearth fire at the same time.

Stores are expected to take special precautions during the holiday season by removing fire hazards, thereby preventing liability of injury and loss of life by fire.

If inflammable material in stores is well guarded from fire and placed in sections from which the crowds may quickly escape the safety of the public will be increased.

Special guards to direct people and keep exits and aisles as clear as possible by some systematic plan, will prevent unnecessary crowding and disturbance and make it possible to clear the premises quickly and in an orderly manner in case of emergency.

Intelligent preparation will reduce fire danger to a minimum during the holiday season.

PATROLMAN WINS IN PISTOL DUEL WITH 8-GUN GAMBLER

New York, Dec. 17 (AP).—A three-gun gambler who tried to shoot his way out of an office on the fourth floor of a midtown building was dying in a hospital today, victim of the unerring aim of a one-gun sleuth.

Patrolman Harry Browner, on plain clothes duty with the vice and gambling squad, saw the gunman, Pierre Guillot, 42, take bets from several men in a restaurant at Seventh avenue and 41st street. He trailed him to the street and then to an office in a building in West 41st street.

Four other men were in the office as Browner entered. He announced his identity and ordered them to line up against the wall. He said Guillot reached for a pistol, but he wrestled it from him. He then picked up the telephone to call the patrol wagon.

As the detective lifted the instrument, Guillot drew two other pistols and, dropped behind a desk, started firing. The detective dropped behind another desk and returned the fire. The other men fled.

After the detective had fired four shots Guillot remained quiet. He found to have three bullet wounds in his head and one in the shoulder. All four shots that the gunman fired missed.

Dependency Only Motive.

Chicago, Dec. 17 (AP).—Dependency appeared today as the only motive for the suicide of Hunt Wentworth, gold coast bachelor and sportsman and son of the socially prominent Mrs. Moses J. Wentworth. He was to have been married in the spring. Wentworth's body, a bullet wound in the forehead, was found last night in his mother's Lake Shore Drive apartment, a revolver clutched in the right hand.

Continue Trip Into War Theatre.

Tokyo, Dec. 17 (AP).—Foreign consuls in Manchuria today appeared determined to continue their precarious journey into the war theatre west of the Khinghan Mountains, despite Japanese advices that both China and Russia were attempting to prevent an international investigation into the condition of foreigners in the battle area.

Youth Kills His Young Sister And Brother

United States and Japan to Confer on Naval Problems

Washington, Dec. 17 (AP).—In a spirit of friendliness and good will the United States and Japan faced each other over a conference table today in an effort to settle as many as possible of their naval problems which will come before the London Disarmament Conference next month.

With the first formal duties of visiting notables disposed of yesterday in ceremonial calls paid President Hoover and Secretaries Stimson and Adams, today was set aside for business conferences and social entertainment.

Since the arrival of the Japanese officials it has been indicated authoritatively that the Tokyo government places submarines and 10,000-ton cruisers ahead of all categories of auxiliary ships and is ready to make considerable concessions in other classes of vessels, in order to keep what it considers a "minimum" defensive armament "in undersea boats and large cruisers."

The insistence on a strength equal to 70 per cent of the largest fleet of auxiliary warships, voiced by Reijiro Wakatsuki, head of the delegation, in Chicago Sunday night, was reasserted, however. This was coupled with the intimation that 80,000 tons of submarines—approximately Japan's present undersea strength—would be offered as a minimum at the London conference.

The 10-10-7 ratio Japan is asking for auxiliary ships was thus presented as applying over the total auxiliary tonnage, rather than to each category separately.

In any event complete abolition of submarines was shown to be held as undesirable by Japan. But the abolition of capital ships, which has been agitated ever since the airplane became an important weapon of war, was represented as a pleasing prospect. That, however, is a subject which the delegation does not plan to bring up at London. Another matter the officials have no present intention of raising is the question of the British Naval Base at Singapore.

An outline of the Japanese position was given yesterday in a formal statement by Wakatsuki at an reception. This said the Anglo-Japanese anti-war pact was the starting point of the London conference, and "in itself a guarantee of success."

Shortly after the Japanese delegation to the London Naval Conference reached the capital the American government completed the list of those who will represent the United States at the parley and announced that 67 men and women would be sent to London.

The United States is separated into nine sections: Delegations, advisers, Naval technical staff, secretaries, Assistant secretaries, stenographers, file clerks, code clerks and navy stenographic personnel.

At first the authorities were at a loss to know who was responsible for the shooting and after an investigation of affairs at the house notified Victor N. Lasher at Woodstock to take charge of the two bodies.

Mr. Wilbur was brought by the officers to Kingston and his son was found at the Willow post office and was also brought along after being questioned.

The lad's story was one which indicated that his father could explain the shooting but did not accuse anyone.

Confesses To Shooting.

Two stories were told by the lad at separate times and it was not until 11 o'clock Monday evening under the examination of District Attorney Traver in the presence of Sergeant James Cunningham that the real facts were learned and the lad confessed to the shooting which he maintained had been accidental.

After an examination by the authorities the lad had been allowed to go to sleep in the jailer's quarters of the court house while Mr. Wilbur was questioned. His story convinced the authorities that he knew nothing of the shooting and the lad was roused from his sleep and again questioned. He then confessed.

He stated that the stories he had previously told had been untrue but said he was afraid to tell what had happened.

Mr. Wilbur stated that he and three of his smaller children had left during the morning in company with Lawrence for Lake Hill where he had a Studelaker car which was in need of repairs. They drove down the valley to Willow and over to Lake Hill in the Chevrolet car where Mr. Wilbur stopped to make repairs to the Studelaker. He told Lawrence to drive back home in the Chevrolet with the three smaller children. He worked for some time on the car before he started back from Clarence Howland's. He estimated the time at from two to three hours. When the car was finally started he drove it back up the mountain toward home.

About a quarter of a mile from home he met his son, Lawrence, coming down toward the village. The lad as he passed his father said "Hurry home pop, two of the children are dead." The father returned home to find two of the children dead from a bullet wound. He was unable to explain the matter.

First Story Untrue.

The lad's story as first told was that he was at work outside chopping wood when he heard a shot fired in the house. He ran in and there he saw the two children on the floor crying. His father he said told him to go and telephone for someone and he said he had gone to Lake Hill to phone. That was his reason for being at Lake Hill at a relative's house when he first told of the shooting.

Later on further questioning he said he had gone down the mountain with his father in the morning and

Lawrence Wilbur, Aged 15, States Children Teased Him—Picked Up Rifle and Pulled Trigger, But Didn't Know Gun Was Loaded—Made Several Attempts To Evade Responsibility For The Deaths.

What apparently is another case of "not knowing the gun was loaded" on Monday afternoon resulted in the fatal shooting of two small children in the Eugene Wilbur home in Sight Hollow, back of Willow. Lawrence Wilbur, 15 years old, is being held by the authorities pending further investigation as the lad who fired the shot.

The facts in the case are most unusual. After several attempts to evade responsibility for the death of his six-year-old sister and his three-year-old brother by placing the blame on his father, Lawrence Wilbur, finally admitted that he had pointed a Springfield rifle at his sister and brother and pulled the trigger in an effort to "scare" them. One bullet killed both of the children as they were running through the doorway between the kitchen and the living room. The bullet passed first through the body of Lulu, six years old, as she was assisting Daniel, three years old, through the doorway ahead of her in an effort to get away from the fifteen-year-old brother.

Just when the shooting took place has not been definitely established, but it must have been about 3 o'clock Monday afternoon.

Notifies Relatives.

The story of the shooting first came to the attention of the authorities when Lawrence went to a relative at Lake Hill and notified them of the death of the two children. Coroner Conner was notified and he in turn summoned Sheriff Rice, and State Troopers, Sheriff Rice, Under Sheriff Doyle, Deputy Sheriff Constable and Coroner Conner went to the scene.

When they arrived at the home which is located about a mile and a half from the post office at Willow up what is known as Sight Hollow, they found the two children and a neighbor who was keeping watch until the authorities arrived. The Wilbur home is located at the end of the trail up the hollow where Sheriff Hoy formerly resided. On the floor between the kitchen and the living room was the body of Daniel and on a bed in a front room was the body of Lulu. It was in that position that the two rested after the shooting. Nothing had been disturbed according to Mr. Simmons who had gone to the home to render what assistance he could and to see that the father, who was apparently heartbroken, was cared for at the home of a relative.

At first the authorities were at a loss to know who was responsible for the shooting and after an investigation of affairs at the house notified Victor N. Lasher at Woodstock to take charge of the two bodies.

Didn't Know Gun Was Loaded.

Lawrence stated that he had gone to Lake Hill as his father had said. He had driven home with the three small children and on his arrival there he had started to mop up the kitchen. The children teased him and bothered him so that he picked up a rifle which stood with two others in a corner and pointed it at the two children who were teasing him and when they started to run away through the door he pulled the trigger. He did not know the gun was loaded. The shot dropped them and he started to get help when he met his father near the house with the car coming in.

In view of the circumstances and the youth of the accused the authorities made no formal charge against the lad but will continue an investigation and pending further developments the lad will be held in custody. After the lad had told his story his father was immediately released but remained at the court house.

Mother at Hospital.

Mrs. Wilbur is at present in the Kingston Hospital where she was recently operated upon. She knows nothing of the shooting of the two children.

Beside the two children who were shot the family consists of seven other children. Theima, 19, is employed as telephone operator at Woodstock; Emily, 18, and Hazel, 16, are employed at Woodstock. Lawrence, 15, resided at home. Roland, 12, and Washington, 10, were at school at the time of the shooting and Lulu, 6, Daisy, 3 and Daniel 3, were at home with Lawrence. Daisy was found after the shooting unharmed upstairs.

Mr. Wilbur stated that about a week ago he had gone bear hunting with the gun which his son used. On his return home he had unloaded the shot from the chamber but had left the other five shots in the clip of the rifle which is a bolt action Springfield. He said his son was familiar with the gun having used it at prior times. The boy when asked by the authorities stated he had never before used the gun but finally admitted he had fired it once or twice before at a target.

Shooting Rice was notified of the shooting at 4:15 and at 5 o'clock was on the scene making an investigation.

Sergeant Cunningham and Trooper Weeks also went to the scene and again today visited the house to make further investigations and to take photographs of the surroundings.

About a year ago Lawrence Wilbur was in trouble with the authorities. Sergeant Cunningham apprehended Lawrence in connection with a robbery. The lad denied at that time any knowledge of the robbery but later when articles were found he confessed to the act and had the authorities to various places in the

Fail to Capture Robber and Killer

St. Joseph, Mich., Dec. 17 (AP).—A nation-wide hunt today had failed to bring about the capture of Frederick Burke, alias Frederick Dane, bank robber and killer who Saturday night fatally wounded patrolman Charles Kelly of St. Joseph when the officer sought to arrest him after a traffic accident.

Burke is alleged to have had a part in the holdup November 7 of the Farmers' and Merchants' Bank at Jefferson, Wis., in which $352,000 in securities was stolen, in the St. Valentine's Day massacre at Chicago last February in which seven gangsters were lined up against a garage wall and mowed down with machine gun fire, and in numerous other crimes in middle western cities.

Police in various cities of the middle west, on the lookout for Burke, expect "fireworks" if he is recognized. They have been warned by Chicago officers that he is a desperate character.

Burke is presumed to be on friendly terms with the Al Capone—rank of hoodlums in Chicago.

Meanwhile Viola Daniels, 37, the woman who posed here as his wife is being held on a charge of receiving stolen goods. She also is known to police, having served a term in the Missouri penitentiary at Jefferson City under the name of Mattie Howard for the murder of Joseph Morino in 1921.

A raid on the luxurious home on Lake Shore drive, near here, in which Burke and Viola Daniels had lived for several months, resulted in the recovery of $219,850 worth of securities stolen from the Jefferson, Wis., bank and the discovery of an arsenal which included machine guns and a large supply of ammunition.

Police concluded that Burke and his gangsters had used the residence in the fashionable Lake Shore district as a headquarters as well as a screen from which they operated in five states, Wisconsin, Illinois, Indiana, Ohio and Michigan.

Burke had been careful to exhibit a respectable front here, explaining to residents of this small city that he was owner of a string of gasoline stations in Indiana. He boasted of his wealth and his luxurious home and was accepted by acquaintances as he made here as a prosperous business man.

Old Style Jubilant Christmas Planned By Hoovers This Year

Christmas will be a jolly time at the White House this year, what with the shouts of Herbert Hoover III (left) and Peggy Ann Hoover (right).

By SUE McNAMARA
(AP Feature Service Writer)

Washington (AP)—An old-fashioned Christmas such as has not been celebrated in the White House in many administrations will make the holiday this year radiant.

Children, for the first time in years, will gather round the brightly-lit tree and pull presents out of stockings in the early Christmas dawn.

Little Herbert Hoover III will clutch his woolly dog with the same gleam as other youngsters in millions of homes all over the land. A doll in a pink or blue bonnet will bring smiles to the face of little Peggy Ann Hoover, aged 3, who is her grandfather's pride.

For the White House "children" will be home for the holidays—Herbert Hoover, Jr., his wife and two children from California, Allan Hoover from Harvard business school and the two children of Mrs. J. H. Large, a sister of Mrs. Hoover. Both are in their teens.

Some of the old neighbors from the former S street home of the Hoovers may be invited in with their children for Christmas eve or at some time during Christmas day.

The homing spirit which draws wanderers from far corners of the earth will be symbolized in the lights shining from the White House windows the night before Christmas. President and Mrs. Hoover have always made much of the day, no matter in what distant land they have been. For the President, especially, the sentiment of the day holds powerful appeal.

This, coupled with the presence of children in rooms which have heretofore been holiday-festive, but lacking the shouts and laughter, will make Christmas this year a real one. The favorite White House dogs—Pat, a big Irish wolfhound belonging to Mrs. Hoover, and Yukon, a white husky with blue eyes, will add their own gruff Christmas greetings to the merry-making.

There probably will be two trees—one in the east room for general callers to see and the other in the private quarters of the President and his family on the floor above.

Church on Christmas morning, a noon dinner and a quiet afternoon with a few old friends will complete the day.

The Coolidges always had a small tree decorated with stars and angels in the east room. There was no need of a special family tree. There was only John to come home from college and he was a little beyond the family tree age.

Christmas Party at Crosspatch

Everybody is hoping for good weather on Monday evening, December 23 for that's the evening of the Crosspatch Christmas party and it's the outstanding event of the holiday season for all the countryside for 20 miles around Willow.

There's a special reason why the party is given on that date. Santa Claus comes to Crosspatch laden down with filled stockings and boxes of candy and dolls and toys of every description. The children all know how friendly and jolly he is, so they tell him that many of them are going to hang up their stockings at home and even have a Christmas tree on the next evening, December 24. Christmas eve, so they date up Santa Claus then and there to visit all their homes the next evening, and he has never been known to fail to keep his promise, though one wonders how he does it, when he has so many places to go. Of course there are always kill-joys who say there is no Santa Claus and indeed a few years ago, a well-intentioned minister in the neighborhood of Willow preached against the Santa Claus idea, and said it was too bad to tell the children such untrue stories about him, for of course everybody knew there wasn't "no such animal" or words to that effect. A small girl listened very gravely and when services were over and they were out in the church yard, she looked up at her mother and said:

"The minister is mistaken mamma, there is a Santa Claus for I've seen him up at Crosspatch every year and I know he'll come again," so one wonders if the childish belief in Santa Claus isn't really a very wise belief in things that are kind and generous and beautiful.

Anyway there'll be loads of children at Crosspatch. It's really their party though of course all the grown-ups are allowed to come and share in the good things and the children like to see them dancing the fine old-fashioned dances later in the evening.

Last year a rather flustered mother apologized because her five children were not much dressed up. "You know," she said, "I've been sick and not able to get all their clothes in order and we thought we couldn't get to the Crosspatch party this time. The children didn't say much all day but at supper Johnny the oldest began to bawl at the top of his voice and the others all joined in. They cried because they couldn't go to Crosspatch and see Santa Claus and take part in all the fun. Well, my husband and I just couldn't stand up as they were, and here we are," hardly necessary to say they were very welcome indeed and Santa Claus would have been grieved if they hadn't come.

Then there are children who are a little fearful that Santa didn't know they were coming "and maybe he won't have any presents for me" is their refrain, but Mrs. Cross knows better. Santa has a sort of wireless working all the time and he knows all about those "last minute" little guests and anyway he not only packs a big load on his back but days before he sends lots of lovely things by aeroplane, so last year when there were over 200 guests there were still stockings and boxes of candy for the late comers though the toys ran out for who would expect such a crowd up there in that lovely but lonely mountain spot.

By the way, Crosspatch Community Center is about a half mile from the Willow post office. The state road ends at Willow, but the dirt road for the short additional distance, is in good shape. It's rather a narrow road so all the cars go up in a long procession. It's a part of the pretty sights of the party to see the cars come tearing up like so many fire trucks. And there'll be a roaring fire in the big fire place of Crosspatch hall and the special little tree on the mantel and a row of stockings over the fire place and lots of real Christmas candles adding their soft glow to the sparkle of the open fire. The big Christmas tree will be electrically lighted and decorated with wonderful ornaments. Santa Claus always stands in front of the big tree to give out the presents. Everybody, young and old, joins in the procession that winds its way past Santa Claus and everyone gets the stocking filled with good things and the box of candy and each one reaches into the big sack and draws out a special present. Dolls are very popular and Santa has sent a lot though dolls have been "as scarce as hen's teeth" this season. The young men tuck the dolls in the upper pockets of their coats with just the head peeping out and there is great trading for some types of dolls like some girls are so very popular, and no one knows just why. Then there is a penny shower for the children and the pennies are supposed to bring luck for the year.

The big blonde doll—who goes to some lucky person—is already causing many heartfelt longings—and she really is such a beauty, just like a movie star. Last year Will Gould was the lucky person. There's no favoritism, yet the big doll always is drawn by someone who lives around Willow and it does seem as if Chester or Lanesville or Phenicia or Mt. Tremper or Woodstock might have the luck this year.

Nearly everyone knows all about the Crosspatch party, but it may not be amiss to repeat that everyone, old and young, stranger and friend are welcome. No admission is charged and all is freely given in the Christmas spirit but it is hoped that everybody who comes to Crosspatch is at peace with all his neighbors and so prepared to do his share toward the joyous spirit that is always so notable at this party.

Mrs. Cross is coming from New York on Saturday, December 21, to put the finishing touches to the arrangements for Monday, December 23. Her friend, Mrs. Ethel Gleason, is coming and they will spend Christmas and probably all of the holiday week at Crosspatch.

Christmas Mail Running Light

Only Income Particularly Kept at Central Post Office in Parcel Post Deliveries — To Employ Many Help Shortly.

Although Christmas is only about a week away the holiday mail at the Kingston post office is not running very heavy and the only increase noticed in the amount of mail handled is in the parcel post deliveries. Monday the department employed three extra men for inside work who had been working but part time.

Postmaster Walter P. Crane said he had on file at his office a list of 175 applicants. The federal post office department has notified him to give preference to those who have been previously employed in delivering holiday mail, which will be done. It is hoped that the last of the week extra help will be employed as the holiday mail will undoubtedly grow heavier at that time.

Becomes Actress Over Night.

New York, Dec. 17 (AP)—Perhaps not stranger than fiction, but certainly strange to the ways of the Broadway stage, is the story of 16-year-old Margaret Perry, who became an actress over night. Margaret, who never had been on the stage before, stepped into the leading role of Isabel Perry in "Strictly Dishonorable" last night when Nuriel Kirkland suddenly became ill. Despite only one rehearsal she scored a success.

Gets More Than Night's Lodging

Monday evening while George W. Rickburg, son-in-law of Under Sheriff Doyle, and assistant parole agent of the Napanoch Institution for Delinquent Juveniles was about the court house he was surprised to see a former inmate of the Napanoch institution walk in and apply to the sheriff for a night's lodging. He immediately recognized the man as John LaTourette of Newburgh, a former inmate who has been wanted for several months for violation of his parole.

LaTourette was escorted by Mr. Rickburg, who informed the man that he was under arrest for violation of parole and instead of securing a place to sleep for the night LaTourette was taken back to Napanoch. LaTourette stated that after being released from the institution he had gone to Newburgh to visit a sister and then had joined a circus and now "bumming" his way back home to spend Christmas with his sister in Newburgh before again taking to the road.

One Case Ready In Supreme Court

With a calendar of some 20 cases marked ready for trial, but with a possibility of only one actually opening today, Supreme Court convened this morning before Judge Charles E. Nichols, to be recessed until witnesses could be brought to court in the action of William Koth against the Ulster and Delaware Railroad, a negligence action.

When court opened Judge Nichols asked, for cases marked ready, but the various attorneys were unable to bring any of their cases to trial, with the exception of Arthur B. Ewig, who offered to try and bring witnesses to open the Koth-Railroad action. Court was recessed for him to communicate with the witnesses, but was expected to convene again before noon and a jury taken so that the case could be tried today. It is expected to be completed before court adjourns this afternoon. H. H. Flemming represents the railroad in the action.

Attorneys are making efforts to have several cases ready for trial Wednesday morning. This is the last week of the present term of Supreme Court and it is hoped to complete all business before the court before it adjourns Friday night.

After Long Distance Record. Cranwell Aldridge, Lincolnshire, Eng., Dec. 17 (AP)—A Royal Air Force monoplane piloted by Squadron Leader A. G. Jones-Williams, which left here this morning in an effort to establish a long-distance, non-stop flight record to South Africa, crossed the French coast at Marseilles this afternoon. The next point on the flier's itinerary was Sardinia.

Sixty Entombed By Mine Blast

McAlester, Okla., Dec. 17 (AP)—Sixty miners were reported entombed in the Old Town Coal Company's mine at North McAlester by an explosion shortly before 11 a. m. today. Rescue crews were rushed to the mine and immediate efforts began to free the imprisoned miners.

Officials of the mining company said 60 men went to work in the mine this morning and none had left before the explosion.

Unable to enter the mine through the opening, the rescue crews started sinking a shaft near the Old Town depot of the Missouri-Kansas-Texas railroad. The imprisoned miners were believed in a tunnel almost under the depot.

The Bureau of Mines' Rescue Station here recruited first aid crews from mines throughout this region and rushed them to the scene.

Whether any of the miners were killed had not been learned.

Nature's Beauties Set Off Brazilian Capital

Rio presents to the traveler entering its harbor, the most beautiful setting in the world. Nature was infinitely bountiful and it was no mishap that the people built up a beautiful city to emulate the example. From the harbor the city presents at the water line a solid white against the blue of the water.

Fascinated a couple of years ago by a description of the scene—although very meager—written by a newspaper man, it is passed along as not only authentic but beautiful and diverting.

"Rio de Janeiro is one city in the world that does not disappoint. No matter what a person has read or been told about it, or what preconception he has evolved out of his own inner consciousness, no one is ever let down by seeing Rio in the flesh. It will find it different from his imagination, of course, but not disappointing. The bay is 16½ nautical miles long and 12 nautical miles wide, and is as blue as the sunshine as the aquamarines dug from the hillsides of the neighboring state of Minas Geraes. At other times it is an emerald, an amethyst or a black pearl, depending on the light conditions. It is big enough to provide anchorage for all the navies of the world, and still have room enough for a reconstruction of the battle of Jutland. It has as many arms and reaches as far as a first baseman."

Quaker City Resident Roused by "Profanation"

Philadelphia of a century ago held very pronounced views on Sabbath observance. It would appear from a contribution to a paper there at that time, inspired by the proposal of a Miss Wright to give a series of lectures on Sunday evenings in one of the city's theaters:

"The thanks of this community are due," said the article, "to your correspondent who has first noticed the outrage about to be committed by a female on the inhabitants of our city and on all morals and social order next Sunday evening at the corner of Ninth and Walnut streets. Such a barefaced attempt at violating our religious institution has not, until now, been made, and it is to be hoped that the good sense of the people will be displayed by permitting this unfortunate female to witness her extreme folly and criminal culpability in the silent contempt of empty boxes and benches. A theater opened on Sunday evening in Philadelphia and the service to consist of Politics, Profanity and Profanation!"—Detroit News.

Sophisticated
The family was to occupy the new house very soon. Joan, ten years old, was going over the house with her mother on an inspection tour. She had evidently observed the rooms unfitted for the younger members of the family and on the walls of these rooms had been placed colorful nursery paper.

When they had completed the round of the house, Joan said: "Mother, may I have Rowena's room for mine?"

"Why, no, Joan; this nice front room with its pretty furnishings is for you."

"Mother," said Joan, "me studying fractions and have paper on the walls with all those billy goats on it?"

A Sleeper!
A foreigner asked, "What is a sleeper?" He was bewildered by the following reply: "A sleeper is one who sleeps. A sleeper is the name of a carriage on the railway in which a sleeper sleeps. A sleeper is a block that holds the rails on which the sleeper runs while the sleeper sleeps. Therefore, while the sleeper sleeps in the sleeper, the sleeper carries the sleeper over the sleeper until the sleeper which carries the sleeper jumps the sleeper and wakes the sleeper in the sleeper. A striking sleeper under the sleeper, and there is no longer any sleep for the sleeper who was asleep in the sleeper over the sleeper!"—Baltimore Times.

Joseph Angelo Pays $35 Fine

Joseph Angelo of Stone Ridge was fined $35 Monday night by Justice of the Peace L. D. Sahler in an action brought by Chris Sickles, who charged that Angelo had made statements to injure his character and reputation.

Deputy Sheriff P. W. Wells served the papers in the action on December 10, and at that time the case was set for last night. The action arose when Mr. Sickles went to the defendant's store to pay a bill. An argument arose concerning the amount, and when Mr. Sickles left the store, the defendant charged him with stealing a pocketbook. Mr. Sickles and Deputy Sheriff Wells went to the Angelo home where the pocketbook was found in one of the drawers. This resulted in Mr. Sickles bringing charges against Mr. Angelo. The fine was paid.

WEST SHOKAN.

West Shokan, Dec. 15.—Following the zero weather and light snows of the past week, a spring-like tendency has developed, quite in proportion to a regulation January thaw. Friday, the thirteenth, was the anniversary of the big December blizzard of 1915, when the snow and blow continued for two days. In this locality over two feet of snow lay on the level, while all highways were blocked, causing busy times for the snow-shoveling crews. This storm was followed closely by rain and slippy weather, which caused the heavy snow blanket to settle materially and within a week largely disappeared. This was the first snow, excepting flurries, to fall that season and was one of the heaviest storms within recollection of old timers. Perhaps influenced by the mildness of the weather there was an unusually large attendance at the Sunday afternoon church service. The Saturday evening session of Shokan I. O. O. F. Lodge was reported well attended. Nominations for the Alonzo Davis was named for vice-grand. Harlow McLean and John Jordan renominated to fill the offices respectively of recording and financial secretaries and Virgil Gordon as treasurer.

Wednesday evening a delegation from Shokan Lodge plans to attend an initiation at Aretas Lodge, Kingston. A bus with the Phoenixia delegation will pick up passengers enroute, arriving at West Shokan about 6:30 p. m.

The Tongore school, in charge of the teacher, Mrs. Albert Quick, are rehearsing for a Christmas entertainment to be held at Odd Fellows' Hall. The ice has disappeared from the reservoir.

Charles Hesley assisted a neighbor at carpenter work on Saturday. The Saturday night program from WGY broadcasted to Commander Byrd and his companions was greatly enjoyed.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Avery of Maple Dell Farm have purchased a new Ford coach through Alonzo Haver.

Several additional milk producers in the Watson Hollow district expect soon to supply the Coddington milk truck. The route has now been extended for the accommodation of customers at West Shokan Heights.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hesley were Kingston shoppers on Friday. Lauren Hesley spent Saturday evening among out of town friends.

St. Clair Barnes is visiting his sister, Mrs. Ezra Green of Ashokan. Eddie Winkler has been hauling firewood for Mr. Hendricksen. Montgomery-Ward & Company customers are anxiously awaiting the opening of the new Kingston store. White rabbit tracks are reported numerous in the vicinity of that territory on little mountain known as the "Billy Fielda," a region rich in the annals of local legendary traditions.

The Department of Water Supply logging crews have been cutting and getting out timber in the vicinity of Bridal Veil.

Superintendent of Highways Ernest Eckert has made arrangements for the opening of the highways in case of heavy snows.

A delegation of local Masons expects to attend the annual meeting to be held Tuesday evening at Kingston Lodge No. 10.

On Tuesday evening, December 10, a group of members of Shokan I. O. O. F. Lodge answered a hurried call from Phoenixia Lodge and conferred the initiatory degree upon two candidates.

The many friends of Uncle Jake Crispell of Shokan extend hearty congratulations for his 87th birthday which falls on Tuesday, December 17. Mr. Crispell is one of the town's oldest and most widely known residents. Totally blind since 1918, he enjoys tolerably good health, and even maintains a cheerful disposition. Possessed of a keen memory he is an interesting conversationalist, well versed in the events of years gone by. He is a descendant of the early Crispells who were among the first settlers in "the valley of the Esopus. His grandfather saw service with Washington at the battle of Long Island, where he was taken prisoner and confined in the "Old Sugar House" prison in New York. From there he was sent to Nova Scotia where he was detained until the close of the war there and served as a guard under the British forces at their base of supplies.

Bob Bishop and Irving Hesley maintain their trapping ardor. However no heavy catches are being reported.

Lauren Hesley with his truck recently delivered stove wood to customers for Abel Every, Jr., of Watson Hollow.

ON FASHIONSTHE PAJAMA IS THE LOU-
ING HOME OF THE
SOPHISTICATED.

New York.—A tour through a magazine department in any up-to-the-minute shop will convince one of the acceptance of the pajama by all sorts and conditions of women. There are pajamas in other sections as well for even at this early date bathing suit sections are coming to life for the benefit of those who are migrating southward. A pajama-less beach is just out of the question any more, and a pajamaless household, even though it is a needless one, is a household which does not know what it is all about sartorially. Women

Fur coats again the answer is largely trend, with a very wide selection of other wool fabrics, that are nevertheless generally referred to as "trends," writes a fashion correspondent in the New York Times. A diverging group of materials for sports, steamer, motor and college service includes two-face diagonals, reversible plaids, brush-face and deep-ple camels' hair and knitted ombre plaid, and novelty jersey-like material that will be used for sports skirts for cold weather as well as coats.

Coatings of treated or glazed effects in narrow stripings in two or three tones and woven broadtail are designed for informal coats for every-day wear. Nothing has been offered to supplant broadcloth in the favor of women who desire style and elegance in a coat for formal dress, and the new weaves are both dull and satin faced. There are also the suaves and the variety of velvet texture cloths in black, which is ultra-smart this season as Redfern, Paton, Talbot and Ardanse are showing, and in dark browns, green, dark raisin and garnet. In the novelty coatings some rich and beautiful samples are coming from the American looms with a metal thread interwoven with the wool.

Fur is used on both coats and suits, with restraint in some models as for just the collar and cuffs, or collar alone; in others, quite lavishly in bands, gullets and parts of the gar-seem to be thoroughly sold to the pajama idea for lounging. They are both comfortable and decorative, and in the new models are wide enough in the lower section to hang skir-wise. Many of them are set on shaped yokes, usually pointed at the front. Coats and trousers usually contrast although there is no cut and dried rule about that sort of thing. There is, however, a strong preference for some sort of contrast; it may be in the design of the silk, or introduced in the surprise or slip-on blouse which seems necessary to the perfect pajama ensemble.

Among the distinctive designs in lounging pajamas may be mentioned the Russian blouse type. This is most effective and is usually made with a contrasting blouse banded with the material used for the trousers. The Russian blouse type usually has a straight collar band and always a belt.

There are endless knitted silk and rayon pajama ensembles, usually employing at least two colors, and there are luxurious types involving lace, chiffon, velvet and even metal cloth.

$100,000,000 In Bonuses.

New York, Dec. 17 (P).—The New York World says today that more than $100,000,000 will be distributed as Christmas bonuses in the financial district, mostly to clerks and bookkeepers in brokerage offices and banking institutions. A survey indicates that the payments will be as large or larger than 1928, the largest on record. Despite the crash in stock values many firms will make new records for net profits in 1929.

ment. Both the long and the short fur are seen with new treatments of the neck and new styles of sleeves and cuffs. Fox and the various kinds of long fur are most fashionable for tweeds and the sports type of dress, while for the smooth cloths and fine woolsens the short soft furs are used.

In costumes of all black, broadcloth combined with flat black fur is exceedingly fashionable. A smart illustration of this comes from Paton, a coat of black broadcloth and Persian lamb. The coat proper is close-fitting and long, and the fur is added in a band to form a rolling collar, carrying down the front where it becomes a part of a wide, flaring peplum.

The length of the new fur coats varies according to the style and the kind of fur. The long coat made to cover the new skirts and cut to the finger tips is approved, as is the middle-of-the-road or three-quarters coat, which is considered equally good for street or afternoon occasions. The novelty furs and the youthful models are thought to be most chic in the three-quarters lengths, or shorter. Also in Persian lamb, mink and other furs of conservative type, the short coat lends for formal street wear or afternoon.

Two or three fur capes have arrived from the Paris autumn collections—versions of an old-fashioned wrap. These are made to cover the shoulder to the waist, and are circular or cut with a deep point at the back.

Dignified Lines Noted

on Distinct Tea Gowns

Afternoon tea provides a charming interlude in a busy day, and the graceful formality of the new afternoon gowns is most appropriate.

One gown, worn recently at a fashionable tea, is an excellent example of the dignity that Mme. Vionnet achieves entirely by line. It was of crepe de chine in a rather orange red and its line was constructed by means of pieces cut from different directions of the material. A triangle of shirring gave the proper suppleness to its high-waisted corseage. And this motif was repeated in the diamond-shaped pieces, cut from the straight of the material, that outlined the neckline. The skirt itself was cut from the bias and therefore has direct reflexes. It fell at least six inches below the knee at its shortest point and was much longer at the sides in front and in the middle of the back.

Printed chiffon dresses are carrying on the work of summer printed silks. There is a Melnyk version of one-piece dress and short jacket for formal afternoon purposes.

OUR DAILY PATTERN.

A good style for a school dress.

$671. Brown and white checked suit is pictured in this model, with white pique for collar, cuffs and belt. Jersey, wool crepe, or wool georgette is also suggested. The long waist portions are joined to a waistband, over which the belt is arranged. The skirt front has a bib extension which is tacked over the waist. The shaped collar attractively outlines a small V neck. The sleeve is a comfortable model, with fullness above a band-cut.

The pattern is cut in 4 sizes: 8, 10, 12, and 14 years. To make the dress for a 10 year size will require 2 1/2 yards of 35 inch material. For collar, belt, and cuffs of contrasting material 1/2 yard 25 inches wide is required, cut crosswise. To finish with bias binding as pictured in the large view will require 3 1/2 yards 1 1/2 inch wide. The tie of ribbon will require 1/2 yard.

Pattern mailed to any address on receipt of 12 cents in silver or stamps.

A pattern of this illustration mailed to any address on receipt of 12c in coin or stamps by the Pattern Department, The Freeman, Kingston, N. Y. Be sure to state the size wanted.

Monday Club Listens to Last Course Lecture

The final lecture in the course on "Aspects of Modern Literature" which have been given by the Monday Club at the chapel of the Episcopal Church this fall, and Edward Norton Voorhees and Bernard I. Bell of St. Stephen's College being the lecturers, occurred on Monday afternoon of this week. The subject for the day was "The Modern Spirit as Shown in the Works of the United States Writers in These United States." Before beginning on the topic for the afternoon, Prof. Voorhees spoke of his being the final lecturer and extended his thanks to the audience for their cooperation and interest—an inspiration to the speaker—and said that he would be taking up the day's subject, give a very brief resume of the earlier lectures on "Some Aspects of Modern Literature" in Europe.

Mr. Voorhees said he had noted three things as outstanding, the first of which was a growing interest on the part of European writers in the spiritual view of life, especially in England, if not openly at least on the part of the writers themselves. The same was true of Germany with added earnestness and in Russia it was self-evident. It was more difficult to find out in Italian literature any pronounced leaning toward the spiritual of the common people. In fact, it seemed to Dr. Voorhees that Italian writers held rather an aristocratic point of view, which was quite natural with Italy's long line of civilization going back to Roman and Greek times. Since there is so little of the aristocratic spirit left anywhere, the speaker thought it well that at least one country's literature should preserve what might become a lost characteristic. In France, particularly Paris, the writers are more or less abandoning the aristocratic class in their interest in working people. In Spain, the tide is kept down pretty tight upon proletarian interests, but occasionally slips during some ferment of revolution.

The second thing that Mr. Voorhees noted on the part of modern European writers was an increasing challenge to the old reticence about sex, though in the old countries there is less how-do about the matter than here and the subject is kept in its proper place in life.

The third thing was just the beginning of a growing tendency to consider time and space, doubtless instigated by Prof. Einstein's writings. This feature was particularly noticeable in "Magic Mountain". The speaker found it less easy to speak generally on the subject of style, since there are almost as many styles as writers, but he did take note of the fact that the European writers are not out to try and shock the Puritan thinking readers, nor do they stand with a pointer in hand in explanatory fashion. Finally, they show a real humility toward life in general, especially the French and Scandinavian writers.

Taking up the subject for the day, Prof. Voorhees said that we are told many things by foreign writers and authors about American literature. He named three bouquets handed out to us—our amazing energy; the generosity of our hospitality; and the profuseness of our criticism. These were sufficiently offset by criticism of various sorts to keep us modest. We are said to have infantile minds, that our vitality is a sort of neurosthenia and that we are hectic, etc., etc. Again they say of us that we have lost the art of conversation and have no home life, but Prof. Voorhees found that no European critic had had the temerity to accuse us of not being good listeners.

America is of age today and our creative literary powers are becoming recognized. Taking up the American romanticists, the speaker quoted a criticism of us being hungry and thirsty for romance and afflicted with the disease of romantic inhibitions. Under the head of romanticists, Mr. Voorhees spoke of "The American Novel of Today" by Regie Michaud and the works of Joseph Hergesheimer, James Branch Cabell and Thornton Wilder, showing their respective ways of dealing with modern life.

Among the "Sophisticates" the speaker mentioned John Erskine and his "The Private Life of Helen of Troy," and especially in reminding us of the "Moral Obligation to Be Intelligent." In this group was also Albert Jay Nock, who wrote "On Doing the Right Thing."

The speaker gave many of the characteristics and ways of thinking and writing of the following group of American realists: H. L. Menckens, Theodore Dreiser, Sinclair Lewis, Sherwood Anderson, William Cather, Ernest Hemingway and a new writer, Wanda Gág, who wrote "Long Voyagers."

Among the constructive thinkers Mr. Voorhees placed Walter Lippman, who wrote "A Preface to Morals," and Julia Ellsworth Ford, whose very interesting novel, "Consequences," he reviewed at some length. He also devoted some time to Paul Elmer Moore, who takes the classic view of life and Irving Habbitt who has the humanist's view of life.

In closing Prof. Voorhees said that regarding American writers, he had mainly given a review of the variety and power of the richness and promise of the future as they are interpreting this life to us. So short a report of one of Prof. Voorhees' most interesting lectures can give only the high spots as he turned the light of his criticism upon them.

Rosendale Home Service Class

"Holiday Sweets" is the topic of the lesson to be demonstrated at 2:30 o'clock Thursday afternoon, December 19, by Miss Elizabeth H. Plank, Home Service Director.

For dainty gifts with an individual touch, for the Christmas boxes that bring a bit of home to folks who are away from the family circle, for gay, seasonal favors at bridge parties, children's parties and other festivities, for bedecking the Christmas tree, and for the regular Christmas tide sweet-meats, the holiday sweets that are made at home fill the order to perfection. It's fun to make them, as well as to taste their delicious flavors. Young folks in their after-school and week-end hours will enjoy taking part in preparation for the holidays, when candy and cookies are on the program, and grown-ups will find it an occupation that gives chance for originality.

Cookies and chocolate peppermints will hold sway, fairly decorated gum-drop Christmas trees, and other favors that wear holiday attire will be explained, and a list of confections will be given that will make everyone want to hurry home to bake-pans and measuring cups.

The recipe sheets will contain directions for making the ever-popular vanilla fondant, stuffed fruits such as prunes, figs, dates, cherries and raisins with a great variety of tasty fillings, puffed rice balls, bran brittle, honey brittle, spiced nuts, vanilla divinity, fresh coconut cream, Japanese confection, and the old stand-by, chocolate fudge without which no candy dish would be complete.

Many of these confections will be demonstrated at the class and samples will be given out. Recipe sheets will also be distributed as usual.

All the ladies of the community are invited to attend these classes which are held in the office of the Central Hudson Gas and Electric Corporation at Rosendale.

Non-Stop Flight To South Africa

Cranwell Airplane, Lincolnshire, England, Dec. 17 (AP).—A Royal Air Force monoplane piloted by Squadron Leader A. G. Jones-Williams and Flight Lieutenant N. H. Jenkins left here at 5 a. m. (5 a. m. E. S. T.) in an attempt to establish a long distance non-stop flight record to South Africa.

Weather conditions were very favorable. The plane is expected to reach South Africa before midnight Thursday.

Nothing was left to chance. The cabin was painted a dull color inside to soften the glare during their three days in it. They carried sporting guns and knives to cut a path through the jungle in the event of a forced landing.

Specially prepared food which they had would enable them to exist many weeks if necessary. The machine carried a small wireless set which during the trials recently over Northolt transmitted signals to Cairo.

B. P. W. Met and Adopted Budget

The board of public works met Monday afternoon at the city hall and adopted its budget for 1930. The amount of the budget is about the same as last year. In addition to adopting the budget, the board transacted several matters brought up at the meeting.

Requests for permission to install electric street signs at City Hall, 101 Wall street, at Broadway and St. James street, and at the intersection of the city hall and the city hall were referred to the independent committee.

The street committee reported favorably on replacing an incandescent light at O'Neil street and South Main street, with a large light.

Hills and claims were read and the board then adjourned.

Hard Working Grundy Is Own Errand Boy

By HERBERT PLIXNER
Feature Service Writer

Washington (AP)—A stocky, round-faced bachelor—Joseph R. Grundy—familiar throughout the country as the only public office to be held by a man of his size.

When William S. Vare was denied his seat in the senate, the name of the 67-year-old Pennsylvanian came to the front immediately. From the outset it has appeared that it was a question of whether Grundy would accept an appointment as Pennsylvania's junior senator.

Will Rogers once had a wisecrack which never failed to get a laugh: "I can't say. I haven't seen Joe Grundy."

The humorist always pulled this one when he was poking fun at Republicans and their attitude on governmental principles as they affected big business. And the inference was that the party first saw Grundy before a definite policy was decided upon.

There is no one who will dispute that Grundy is a power in the Republican party. And his power lies in the fact that he is a tariff expert.

To many the name is synonymous with tariff. It is the man's specialty—since 1890 he has had a finger in every revision. As president of the Pennsylvania manufacturers he is regarded as industry's leader in all matters relating to the economic structure of the nation.

Grundy is noted for thoroughness. He works all the time. On a recent holiday, while others were taking the day off, Grundy spent the entire day at the congressional library digging out tariff data.

When he enters his office for work he sheds his coat and vest. If the day is warm, he removes collar and tie as well. Seldom does he rely on the entire day at the congressional library.

ing about 7:30 o'clock. He will have a big bag of candy with him and his order book. There will be a box of candy for each youngster. There will also be a huge Christmas tree, all lighted with colored lights.

All the children of members of the American Legion and world war veterans not members of the Legion are cordially invited to come to the Legion building next Monday night and be a member of Santa's big party.

The jolly old fellow wants to stead of ringing a bell for a secretary, he gets it himself. Grundy takes no time for play. He has but one hobby: Politics as it affects the economic structure of the country.

hear some of the Christmas songs and recitations the children have learned for school and Sunday School. Any little boys and girls who would like to show Santa how nice they can sing or recite are asked to call Mr. Jones whose number is 552-M and leave their names.

Human Perversity
We may forgive those who bore us, we cannot forgive those whom we bore.—La Rochefoucauld.

Slippery Walks And Roads Here

There was a light flurry of snow Monday evening which was followed by rain and as the thermometer dropped toward the freezing point during the night the snow that had fallen was changed to a glare of ice, which made walking a dangerous proposition this morning. The roads were also a glare of ice and the board of public works had several trucks out again sanding the hills in the city to make them safe for traffic. During the morning hours rain fell here.

Feel Nature's Wrath in West, Red Cross Says

St. Louis, Mo. — Mother nature seems to find the states between the Mississippi river and the Rockies particularly attractive ground over which to spread destruction.

Exclusive of the Mississippi valley flood of 1927-28, 164 calamities visited this region from July 1, 1922, to June 30, 1929, according to a report recently issued by the midwestern area headquarters of the American Red Cross.

The greater number of these calamities were tornadoes which numbered 94. Floods totaled 36. These calamities claimed 1,012 lives and injured 3,530 persons, according to the report.

W. M. Baxter, Jr., manager of the midwestern area, said that the number of disasters requiring organized relief shows no sign of abatement.

Baxter quoted figures showing that the Red Cross assisted 21,373 families, representing 106,894 people, in this area.

Outstanding among the many serious disasters in the Middle West since 1922 was the Missouri-Illinois-Indiana tornado, which began in Shannon county, Missouri, sweeping over a track nearly 400 miles long and ending its havoc wrecking journey near Princeton, Ind. Eight hundred persons were killed, more than 3,000 were seriously injured and thousands of others received first-aid treatment.

Another Mystery of Sea Baffles Mariners

Sidney, N. S. W.—The steamer Junee has returned to port here, unsuccessful in its three months' attempt to unlock another mystery of the sea—the disappearance of the Danish cadet ship Kobenhavn with its crew of 70 naval students.

The Kobenhavn vanished January 21, last, on a voyage from Buenos Aires to Australia.

For 80 days the Junee, chartered to search for the missing sailing vessel, traversed the sea lanes and sometimes the uncharted areas of the vast great southern ocean. But the sea held its secret.

Captain R. D. Fletcher, master of the Junee, said on his return that there could be no doubt but that the Kobenhavn and its youthful crew had fallen victim of drifting ice.

The search for the Kobenhavn, which extended over 12,200 miles, of which 4,300 were zig-zagged off the charted courses.

Cop 25 Years on Force

Teaches Sunday School

Washington.—Sgt. Charles C. Wise of the Washington police department celebrated his twenty-fifth anniversary as a member of the force by teaching a men's Bible class in the prominent Metropolitan Presbyterian church. Although he patrols a "hard boiled beat" Wise never has resorted to firearms and has become known as the "two-fisted cop."

Dimples Sues Hubby

for Admiring Dimples

Milwaukee, Wis.—Dimples Bibb Cole has sued Arthur Cole for divorce here because Arthur admired the dimples of other women. Dimples is Dimples' literal name. It was given her, she said, because parents and neighbors thought her dimples should be memorialized by a name when she was a dimpled baby.

Old Viennese Customs

In Vienna the waiter who brings you your coffee—the aromatic beverage of which Vienna alone knows the secret—cannot accept payment for it. For that you must wait your turn with the "pay waiter," who probably has to deal with the reckoning of every guest in the cafe. Even your "tipping," though inexpensive, is not simple. The "pay waiter" receives the most largesse, the serving waiter a few groschen, and if you have had wine or beer, the diminutive piccolo who serves it must have his fistful of tiny copper coins amounting in value to a couple of cents.

The Pet Aversion

An entry in the intimate diary of George Sand—made nearly 100 years ago—reads:

"I'm glad I don't care for spinach for if I liked it, I should eat it, and I cannot bear spinach."

Wherein the great writer is no different from a little fellow I know, who came to visit his grandmother for the first time. As he crossed the threshold where his adoring relative was waiting to receive him with open arms, he looked up into her face and hissed:

"I don't like spinach."—Kansas City Times

Market for Fruits And Vegetables

New York, Dec. 17 (P).—(State Department of Agriculture and Markets)—Arrivals of western New York celery were limited again this morning. Trading was moderate and price changes few and small in a steady market. Offerings in the rough, packed in two-thirds crates, fobbed out at $2.25-3.50, occasionally 3.75 for the best. A year ago state celery sold at $3.25. A survey of 34 cold storage warehouses in western New York on December 13 revealed celery holdings at 132,787 crates. On the corresponding date last season, the total was 177,635 crates.

The tone on domestic yellow onions was dull. The demand was light. Prices averaged a trifle lower. Receipts were moderate. Wholesale business on western New York offerings rarely exceeded $2.10 per 100-pound sack, while consignments from the middle west reached $2.25.

The market was dull and sluggish on New York upstate carrots. Early trading was limited. Fresh supplies were light but fair supplies were carried over from yesterday. Washed carrots in bush baskets peddled out at $1 to $1.12½, occasionally $1.25. Unwashed stock in sacks of 100 pounds brought from $1.25-1.50.

Liberal supplies of white potatoes were on hand at most local terminals. The demand was only fair with the market generally inactive. Price changes, however, were small and unimportant. Green mountain potatoes from Maine comprised most of the supply and sales of bulk stock were reported at $4.75-55 per 150 pounds. Reports from growers in 11 southern states indicate a possible total increase of about 12 percent over the acreage planted in 1929.

A slightly weaker feeling prevailed for state white cabbage. Supplies were fairly liberal, but buying continued limited. The latest wholesale business on offerings in bulk was transacted at $33-35 per ton, very rarely higher.

Federated P. T. A. Meeting.
The Federated Council of the P. T. A. will meet at the high school Wednesday afternoon at 3:15, in Miss Cordes room. Miss Peabody, from the department of parental education at Albany, will speak. A large attendance is desired. Anyone interested in this matter is cordially invited to attend. There will also be an evening meeting with Miss Peabody at 8 o'clock.

To Abandon 12 Miles of Railroad.
Washington, Dec. 17 (P).—The Fonda, Johnstown, and Gloversville Railroad received permission today from the Interstate Commerce Commission to abandon 12 miles of line between Hayfield and Northville, in New York state.

Treasury Receipts.
Washington, Dec. 17 (P).—Treasury receipts December 14 were $15,827,356.66; expenditures, $22,811,457.79; balance $49,237,758.42.

Financial and Commercial

New York, Dec. 17 (P).—The stock market finally turned upward today after drifting about uncertainly during an extremely dull forenoon with sales during the first two hours totaling less than a million shares.

Operators for the advance were encouraged by the comparative stability of the market during the morning, and activity picked up considerably during the early afternoon, as several leading issues were bid up from 2 to more than 6 points. The rapid drying up of the selling movement, which depressed prices sharply yesterday, was particularly pleasing to the bull element.

Call money was firmer than for several days past, but held officially at 4½ percent. News bearing on the credit situation, however, was largely favorable. The decline of $11,000,000 in security loans by weekly reporting member banks, as reported by the Federal Reserve, was particularly pleasing, as it occurred in a week when brokers' loans increased $32,000,000, and indicates that banks are at last taking progress in liquidating security loans.

United States and Republic Steel rose about 4 points each, and Western Union, General Electric and Johns-Manville 5 to 6. Westinghouse Electric, American Can, A. M. Byers, National Biscuit and International Harvester rose 2 to 4.

The upturn embraced all groups, with the exception of the motors, which failed to make notable headway.

Considerable irregularity appeared during the early trading, and a few rather volatile stocks declined sharply. Outlets Elevator selling off 10, International Business Machines 8 and Allied Chemical 5.

Ancient City of Paris Has Had Many Masters

Upon a bit of an island shaped like a ship, and set in the river Seine about a half mile in length have been cradled some of the world's most historic scenes. Just prior to the Christ era a tribe of Gauls, called Parisii, selected the place as one easily defended, and fortified it, calling it Lutetia. Today, walking along the "ship," you come to a short and narrow street, not more than a hundred feet long by six feet broad, the Rue de la Colombe. Here traced across the pavement is a narrow line of stones, showing where once stood part of the rude fortifications of those ancient Gauls who fought the Romans 2,000 years ago. And high above the ancient site, marking the advance of man is strung from the roofs across the street the wires of a radio. Upon these ancient Gauls came the conquering Romans, who built a pagan temple to Jove on the site where a few centuries later was to rise Notre Dame which has stood for 750 years in its completed grandeur. Followed the Franks from Clovis to Louis IX, who all dwelt upon the "boat," Louis IX built Sainte Chapelle church. Under Charlemagne in the year 800 the island became the capital of France. In that same century the Normans beat up the Seine in their long ships time and time again, laid siege to the city, sacked it and ruined the suburban boys. Then followed more peaceful times, till in 1163 the first stone of Notre Dame was laid, and still stands as chief adornment to the stern of the "ship." At one side of Notre Dame is the oldest hospital in the world, God's mansion, twin in age with Notre Dame.

Indeed, if one were to deal fully with the "ship," the historic buildings upon it, and the relics they house today, they would be writing much of French history.

Stature Really Matter of Little Importance

When Japan emerged from splendid isolation and entered into competition with western nations, the abbreviated stature of the Japanese was a source of worry to their leaders, remarks a writer in the Boston Globe.

They sent missions abroad to learn the tricks of occidental civilization. One day a Japanese mission came home and reported that it had solved a great national problem. Weren't all the western peoples reared on a milk diet? Milk must therefore be the secret of raising a nation of tall men.

Immediately, the milk diet became the great Japanese hobby. The bigwigs in high government bureaus set the example. At intervals, they would enter carrying a tray of milk bracers. "Ah," the bureaucrats would exclaim, as he tossed it off, and stretched himself.

But after an army of little runt had licked the Russians, the tallest nation in Europe, the Japanese stopped worrying about their stature.

Thrifty Computer

It was raining when a New Jersey computer started for work and he shared his umbrella with a neighbor. When the train reached the terminal in New York, the neighbor was startled to see the computer hand his umbrella to the conductor, saying that some one had forgotten it.

"What's the big idea?" asked the neighbor. "Well, it's stopped raining," said the computer. "If I check the umbrella at the station and get it back at night it will cost me 10 cents. The conductor will turn it in to the lost and found department and I'll claim it tonight and save the checking fee." "And you're the guy who tells all those Scotch stories," observed the neighbor.—Boston Globe.

Early Electric Light

More than a century ago, a Professor Meitcheke of Halle, in Germany, succeeded in producing a brilliant illumination by means of electric light and with the aid of artificial air enclosed in glass tubes. It was recorded in the New Monthly Magazine, published in London at that time. "As the electric sparks propagate themselves to infinity," the article continued, "the professor thinks it will be possible to light up a whole city with a single electrifying machine, and at a trifling expense, by the adoption and probable improvement of the apparatus he has already invented."—Kansas City Star.

Shires Given Severe Beating

Trafton, Football Player, Wins After Five Rounds of Toe-to-Toe Milling—Shires Not Discouraged.

Chicago, Dec. 17 (AP).—Napoleon Shires, who has been called "The Great Bear" by his friends, met his Wellington, Arthur "The Great" Shires, last night in his "Big Bear" fight.

Flushed and self-satisfiedly great because of his knockout over the "Big Bear" in his last fight, Trafton, the "Big Bear" of professional football last night and he got the beating of his life.

Before a howling throng of 5,000 spectators, who packed the White City Arena to its breaking point, Trafton decisively conquered the notorious, punch-slinging White Sox first baseman. Launching terrific blows from behind his 220 pounds, Trafton battered Shires to the floor three times and won the decision by a wide margin after five rounds of toe-to-toe milling.

It was the first setback for the "Great One," but it didn't finish his ring career. As a physician attended, he announced with no little haughtiness that he was willing to carry through his agreement to meet the "Dempsy of the Cub Outpost," Hack Wilson, some time in January.

Nor did he feel disgraced in his defeat. He half-way admitted Trafton's superiority, but he pointed out that he was outwitted by 49 pounds.

"I didn't want to meet that big bruiser and I've got a mind to sock my manager on the jaw," he grunted. "But I fought the best I could and had my own laugh at the suckers—those silly fans who paid five dollars a seat. Let 'em think I'm dumb. I got three grand ($3,000) for the fight and I'll get $10,000 more for swapping punches with Hack Wilson."

Shires fought a courageous fight, but Trafton's great weight and superior boxing ability were too much for him. Only at the start of the battle did he look like the "Great One" who sent Daly to sleep. At the tap of the bell, he leaped like a panther from his corner, rocking the rights and lefts. But Trafton, his muscles steered by long months of football, was ready for him. He weathered the storm and thereafter carried the attack to Shires.

Three times in the first round, Trafton's looping left hook sent the Texan to the canvas, while many times "Lil' Arthur" was sent reeling backwards by straight rights to the jaw.

After that round and what actual punches the two tired fighters could propel, it was all Trafton. Three or four times in each of the remaining rounds, he gave Shires a few healthy smashes and then walked around like a bear in a zoo with the very tired Mr. Shires walking after him, five feet away.

Of the two, Trafton was the more exhausted. His eyes drooped, his hands hung helplessly by his side and he glared his eyes on the timekeeper. It was all right with Shires. Occasionally, he would halt the armistice by a half-hearted overhand swing that landed on the ropes and then resume his pace behind his big rival. Both had the tired appearance of a pair of ditch diggers going home after a hard day's work.

But the large crowd, which paid in excess of $15,000, was more than satisfied, realizing the two had fought with every ounce of their vitality. The little arena was in an uproar, which was deafening when the two started each round by toe-to-toe milling. Friends of both climbed to their corners between rounds offering advice. Women and men stood up during the fight swinging their fists to convey more advice and twice the noise was so great that Arthur and George fought overtime because neither they nor the referee could hear the bell.

The two met in the shower baths after the fight, shook hands, complimented each other for "making suckers out of those fight fans," and then went arm in arm to a night club.

Trafton was in a jovial mood. "I'll fight anybody for another $1,000," he chuckled. "That's an easy game. How long has this been going on?"

WHY SHOULD I FIGHT HIM, TOO? ASKS WILSON.

Chicago, Dec. 17 (AP).—A special dispatch to the Tribune early today said Hack Wilson, Cubs' centerfielder, had definitely decided not to go through with the proposed fight with Arthur (the Great) Shires here in January.

After learning that George Trafton, football pro, had whipped Shires last night, Wilson asked the Tribune correspondent "Why should I fight him, too?"

Sport Slants

By Alan J. Gould, (Associated Press Staff Writer.)

In the general baseball overhauling and reconstruction work for the major league campaigns of 1930, it should be noticed that neither the world's champion Athletics nor the National League champion Cubs are displaying any tendency to stand pat and congratulate themselves upon the results of 1929.

Both pennant-winning outfits already have been strengthened for next season, especially the Chicago team. The Wrigley ballpark, which in time may become as famous as the Ruppert check-book that contributed to six pennant-winning Yankees, has been tapped substantially since the close of the 1929 race.

The Cubs parted with considerable cash, possibly as much as $100,000, besides several players, to obtain two star pitchers from the minors—Malcolm Moss of the Louisville Club and Lynn Nelson of the Kansas City Blues. Nelson was a leading finger in the American Association last year. Moss came up from Vanderbilt University and showed sufficient stuff to justify a $40,000 price tag, even though his record was not up to Nelson's by a wide margin.

Here are their official performances for 1929:

Nelson 35 15 6 714 190 797
Moss 43 9 18 333 274 1146

In the Nelson deal, the Cubs dispatched Norman McMillan, third baseman, whose place will be taken in the 1930 lineup by Rogers Hornsby's old pal, Lester Bell.

The A's have strengthened their pitching staff by the addition of Leroy Mahaffey, iron man right-hander of the Portland Ducks.

With youth predominating in the lineup of the world's champions, Connie Mack needs to do little juggling. If he needs an infield replacement, especially around shortstop, he has a star ready-made prospect in Eric McNair, who made his debut with a flourish last September, but was not eligible for the world's series.

The Yankees are due for considerable revamping under Bob Shawkey. Two of the main replacements obtained are Tom St. Paul—Eugene (Bubbles) Hargrave, backstop and manager of the Saints last season, and Allen (Dusty) Cooke, hard-hitting outfielder.

The figures show Hargrave batted .369 in 104 games and Cooke .358 in 152 games, leading the American Association home run hitters, so that he may furnish the long-range step needed if, as expected, he is to step into the left field post vacated by Bob Meusel and keep Babe Ruth company.

Game Tonight At the Y. M. C. A.

The Y. M. C. A. senior quintet will play the Community Five of Saugerties tonight at the Y. M. C. A. court. The strength of the visiting team, judging from their previous performance, when they downed the local team 35 to 25, is enough to assure a good game. The contest is scheduled for 9 o'clock.

A preliminary game will be staged between the local A. T. & T. quintet and the N. Y. Telephone Five of Poughkeepsie.

BRIGHT OUTLOOK FOR BASKETBALL

An Interesting Season Seen by Committeemen.

Ralph Morgan, a member of the Intercollegiate Joint Rules Committee on basketball, and chairman of the basketball committee of the University of Pennsylvania, predicts that the 1930-31 season will be one of the most interesting that the sport has yet enjoyed.

"In all my close to 30 years of association with basketball I have never seen such interest as has been manifested this year," he said. "Since the close of the war," he continued, "interest in basketball has mounted so rapidly that most of the present physical equipment is inadequate to take care of the crowds that want to witness the college games. Among the students the interest is manifested in the large turnout of candidates for the various teams."

"The Eastern Intercollegiate league season which does not open until after the first of the year, gives promise of being one of the best in years. Judging by the amount of veteran material that has returned to Yale, Princeton, Columbia, Cornell, Dartmouth and Pennsylvania, members of the league, the championship race should develop into a close affair."

Arnold Horween of Chicago, for the past four years head coach of Harvard football eleven, will coach the Crimson in 1930.

Louis A. Young, for the last seven years head football coach at University of Pennsylvania, has declined reelection as coach and will become assistant to Sidney E. Hutchinson, chairman of the council of athletics at Pennsylvania.

With nine lettermen returning next year, and the best freshman material the Midway has seen in a decade, the Maroon football team should be a real factor in the conference next season. A. A. Stagg's famous passing attack will be bolstered by some good "free runners" from the freshman squad of the type that were sadly needed this season.

Frank Patrick, manager of the Vancouver Hockey club of the Pacific Coast league, announced recently that he had refused an offer of $10,000 from the Windsor (Ont.) team of the International Hockey league, for Bill Phillips, crack right winger and captain of the Lions. Patrick said he also turned down an offer from the New York Americans for Phillips, including a cash consideration and a trade in which Clarence Boucher, defense man, now a holdout, would come to Vancouver.

More than 470,000 spectators, the second largest number ever to witness University of Michigan football games in one season, attended the eight contests on the Wolverines' schedule this fall. This total was surpassed only in 1927, the first year Michigan used its new stadium, when there were sell-outs for the Ohio, Navy, and Minnesota games.

George Ross, whose two touchdowns against Northwestern gave 300 members of the Indiana university "no shave" club the right to shave, has become an honorary member of a barber's union.

The union at Wabash, Ross' home town, voted him honorary membership, which does not, however, carry privileges of free barbering.

Mal Sir R. O. D. Segrave, holder of the automobile speed record, will have three speedboats in the international regatta at Detroit next summer, according to information brought back from Brussels by J. Lee Barrett, secretary-treasurer of the Yachtmen's Association of America.

By an overwhelming vote, letter men of the University of Illinois football team voted not to elect a captain for 1930.

The 18 members of the squad who were awarded letters decided to leave the selection of a field leader before each game to Coach Bob Zuppke, a plan that has become popular in many schools during the last few years.

Erret Van Nieu, halfback, has been elected to captain the University of Chicago football team during the 1930 season.

The National Sporting club in King street, Covent garden, London, is to give way to the advance of progress. A theater and stores will take the place of the historic structure, scene of many pugilistic battles.

The American association will play a 154-game schedule during 1930 and the season will open on April 15 and end September 21, according to a ruling made in the annual meeting.

Johnny Dobbs, who once played the outfield for the Robins, signed a three-year contract to manage the Atlanta baseball team of the Southern association. Dobbs was with the Birmingham club this year. He won the Southern association championship with the Braves in 1923.

Denying that he would leave Minnesota, Dr. Clarence Spears, football coach said "there is nothing of the whole matter" of his accepting appointment as head football coach at the University of Washington.

Greenleaf Plays Great Billiards

Shatters World's Mark for High Run and Most Games, Defeating Taberski, 125-0.

Detroit, Dec. 17 (AP).—The two greatest performances ever made in pocket billiards were listed to the credit of Ralph Greenleaf today. The former champion, now possessor of second place in the world's title tournament in progress at the recreation building, shattered the world's mark for high run and best game when he defeated Frank Taberski, defending titleholder, by 125 to 0 in two innings.

This was the third time during the tournament that Greenleaf's old mark of 101, made in 1924, was broken. Last Friday night Edwin Rudolph, present tournament leader, had a high run of 111, and he ran out in four innings for a new record. Yesterday afternoon Rudolph had a high run of 194 against Marcel Camp. The score of that game was 125 to 5 and the game lasted six innings.

Greenleaf played perfect billiards throughout. He went through nine straight frames of 11 balls each and his position play was without a flaw. He had few difficult shots and the machine-like precision with which he ran off point after point held the capacity crowd spellbound. He required forty minutes to finish the game.

This was the second time in world's championship tournaments that Greenleaf crushed Taberski. In 1926 he defeated the present champion by 125 to 0.

Greenleaf also is the only player who ever scored perfection in pocket billiards with the required points at different totals. Against Jerome Keogh five years ago he scratched in the first inning then ran 101 unfinished in the next. Last night his 125 in two innings was a duplicate performance only for a game of 25 more points.

Greenleaf and Rudolph meet tomorrow night.

Gun Club Held Shoot Saturday

Fire members of the Ulster County Gun Club took advantage of the fine weather last Saturday afternoon. While no perfect scores were made, neither were any very poor ones.

The club is arranging for a turkey and chicken shoot, open to the public, on December 22. Five-target, ten and twenty-five target events will be provided. Also if it is desired by the shooters there will be shooting at stationary targets.

Saturday scores follow:

	23	20	21	23	Pct.
Caunitz	23	20	21	23	87
Wheeler	18	20	23	20	81
Finch	23	21	22	20	86
Coles	22	21	23	22	88
Hopkins	20	19	22	22	81

R. N. Wheeler won the leg on Ralph Trophy.

The DAIRY

VENTILATION FOR BARN ESSENTIAL

It Will Promote Health and Comfort of Dairy Animals.

Ventilation is necessary for the health and comfort of animals. It will preserve the building and contents from mold and rot due to excessive moisture, and will aid in the prevention and control of disease.

There are barns today where the construction is such that there is a simple movement of air through leaky walls, hay chutes, silo chutes, and stairways. Such buildings in extreme weather, however, become too cool for dairy cattle to give economical production.

For the best results we must admit fresh air, remove stale air, and control temperature and humidity.

A system for ventilation consists of openings or inlets to admit air, openings or outlets to remove air, and some means of creating a movement of air.

The factors having the greatest effect on neutral ventilation are the heat which is supplied by the animals in a building.

Since the heat to create an air movement through a barn must be furnished by the animals in the barn, it is evident that the kind and size of animals and the construction of the barn must be carefully considered.

A cow or horse weighing 1,000 to 1,200 pounds will heat approximately 600 cubic feet space in a well built barn. Only such space as an animal can heat should be provided. For dairy barns the ceiling height should not be over six feet in the clear.

The King system of taking foul air out of the barn near the door and admitting fresh air near the ceiling has proved very satisfactory, and is the most widely used.

Definite rules for the King system of ventilation are:

1. The stable should be of tight, warm construction.

2. Allow 600 cubic feet of space for each 1,000 pound animal, or equivalent.

3. Intakes should be many and small.

4. Intakes should be located every 12 feet around the building.

5. Intakes enter at ceiling, open at outside about 4 feet lower.

6. Intakes should be insulated.

7. Out-takes few and large.

8. Out-takes draw from 15 inches above floor.

9. Out-takes equipped with heat door near ceiling.

10. Out-takes insulated, straight, high, and fitted at the top with a roof ventilator.

11. Allow one square foot of out-take for four 1,000 to 1,200 pound cows or horses, or equivalent in other live stock.

12. Total capacity of intakes should be equal to or slightly greater than out-takes.

13. Air can be drawn to the out-take a maximum of about 30 feet.

14. One roof ventilator for each 25 feet in length of a barn 36 feet to 40 feet wide.

Incompetent Feeder Can Reduce Milk Production

One member of a dairy herd improvement association was engaged in business that kept him away from home most of the time. He left his dairy herd in the hands of an incompetent feeder who dished up the feed with a scoop shovel and fed all the cows alike, regardless of production. Such feeding did not result in greater profits. In fact, that herd that year was carried at a loss.

The wise dairyman strives to build up a high producing dairy herd that will naturally bring an increased yield and increased net profits per cow when each cow is fed according to production. From such cows and from such herds only can the dairyman hope to get 100 per cent more milk from 50 per cent more feed.

Dairying Very Rich in Three Kinds of Gold

Dairying is rich in three kinds of gold—yellow, green, and white, and all three golds are as good as cash money.

The yellow dairy gold is the cream, ready to be sold for cash any day in the week. The green dairy gold is alfalfa and other legumes that feed the cows and build up the soil.

And the white gold of dairying is the skim milk—not a by-product of no importance, but a golden stream of feed value for which no adequate substitute has ever been found.

Dairyman's Obligation

Theoretically, the dairyman's obligations of producing and delivering a clean, sweet milk end when the bottled product is set on the doorstep, but practically it does not end until that milk is consumed. It is imperative, therefore, that he deliver the milk at the doorstep at a temperature which will insure its keeping below the danger point—50 degrees Fahrenheit—even though it is left there half an hour. Thoughtlessness and carelessness in delivering cream complaints.

Nanking Troops Take Offensive

Follow up Triple Victory Over Three

Rebellious Factions—Report of Chang's Suicide Not Credited.

Shanghai, Dec. 17 (AP).—The battle between Nationalist government appeared to be on the offensive in China again today after following up its triple victory over three rebellious factions which almost caused its downfall.

Instead of being in the precarious defensive position disclosed a few days ago, advances indicated the tide had turned once more in favor of Nanking and that Nationalist soldiers were entering rebellious territory with hostile forces apparently crumbling in the face of the advance.

At Canton, where the Nationalists won a bloody battle December 9, the rebellious "Ironside" division of General Chang Fak-wei and the Kwangsi rebels, who cooperated in an advance upon the southern metropolis, were reported crushed.

General Chang was reported to have committed suicide as the result of his defeat, but the report remained unverified and uncredited.

Collapse of the insurgents north of Hankow under command of General Tang Yun-sheng was expected in Nationalist quarters as the result of government victories in that area.

Fang's recent advance caused the evacuation of many foreigners from Hankow, important central China city.

Nationalist forces also claimed to have the rebels in a precarious condition north of Pukow.

These successes seemingly gave Nanking the advantage but conditions remained unsettled in many places. Minor troop defections continued and outlaws prevailed in many places, especially in the Yangtze valley. Bandits at Ichang fired upon two American river boats.

Bandits were reported to have looted villages in Kwangtung province, slaying the gentry indiscriminately.

Observers believed the Nationalist government remains the principal authority in central and southern China but that lawlessness throughout the country seemed more prevalent than at any other time in recent years.

Vocalism Unpopular

An inspirational writer says it is a fine thing to be able "to sing in the rain." That depends on the singer. Some of us can hardly sing in the sun, even without causing it to start to rain—bricks.—Detroit News.

Horse Sense, but No Horse

An economist makes an impassioned plea for common sense in road building. It would be fine to have common sense all along the line—even to those who drive on the roads that common sense has built.—Los Angeles Times.

Life's Tragedy
Real to Them

The sales of Christmas Seals, particularly in our own country, are no longer a mere commercial transaction. They are a powerful preventive measure against tuberculosis and kindred ills that come all too surely to undernourished children. When the sale of these little seals was first introduced into this country it was by the American Red Cross for the fighting of tuberculosis. From the day of the first seal sale to the present time the interest in the prevention and cure of this frightful scourge has never wavered, for scarcely a home but has felt its death-dealing hand at some time.

In those early days, when Red Cross workers sold seals in booths in the stores, etc., the following incidents happened to one worker. It was a bitterly cold day, when one could not keep warm, though warmly clothed, in selling the seals in the front of what was then the Herbert Carl store. The worker noticed a frail looking woman, very thin and shivering, accompanied by a little lad fairly blue with the cold. The woman and boy seemed so fascinated by the seal booth that the worker asked if they were interested. In a half-frightened manner the woman said that she did so wish they could do even a tiny bit to help along this work for "father" had just died of tuberculosis. She could not spend more than five cents, and that of course could do no good. The poor little woman was almost in tears as she said it. But the worker assured her that five cents could do some good—it could buy one fresh egg, and fresh eggs and milk were what folks sick with tuberculosis had to have. The woman's face and that of the little boy fairly beamed at the suggestion, and joyfully the five cents worth of seals were purchased, though the worker could not have taken even that little but to give the woman the supreme happiness of helping to her very limit.

On another day the worker was in one of the downtown booths—when a scantily clad boy of some ten winters with grimy face and hands and an aggressive, half-defiant air, came in and stood around gawking at the innocent worker. Finally she asked him what she could do for him, and the conversation and subsequent events were something like this:

Small Boy: Th'aint no use your asting folks to buy five cents worth of them little stickers.

Lady: Why not?

Small Boy: Couldn't do nobody no good, and anyway I ain't got even five cents.

Lady: But if you did have five cents that would buy a fresh egg, and that might help some little fellow sick with tuberculosis to get well.

Small Boy: Mehbe, but you don't have to pay five cents for one fresh egg.

With that remark and a longing look, out the boy went, slamming the door after him as though greatly exercised over the whole matter. In a little while back he came with four other urchins, evidently his pals. Small Boy: Well you didn't lie (Greatly to the lady's amazement); them fresh eggs DO cost five cents. Tommy Smith, one of our gang's got that sickness and we want to help somehow.

Then turning to the other boys, the Small Boy commanded:

"Here, you guys, give the lady your penny and Tommy'll get one fresh egg, anyhow," and Tommy did. These true stories, like the original story of the widow's mite, are not told to show us how little we can give to help others; or to pay our debt of thankfulness to a merciful Providence as shown to us, but they are told that we may realize how perfect is the gift that gives for others at a supreme cost to self.

Christmas Seals sold this year will mean some Tommy Smith will have a chance to go to Camp Happyland before he gets sick and as he grows to healthy manhood he will be fitted to take care of home and children of his own so that the story of the widow and little boy need not be repeated in his case.

The Widow's Mite is indeed not an alibi, but an inspiration to all of us to give in proportion to our privileges; much, very much if we can, but if we simply cannot, then at least what little we can. To rid our country of tuberculosis we need the help of every citizen in this country.

A MATTER OF AGE

In the course of the trial the judge turned to the negro woman on the stand and asked:

"How old are you?"

"Seventy-three, judge."

"Are you sure?"

"Tass, sah."

"Mandy, you don't look seventy-three."

"Ise sure, judge."

After a few moments the trial was interrupted by Mandy.

"Judge, I mistaken about my age being seventy-three, that's my best measure, sah."
